Disco inferno cools down and chills out

DANCERS react to temperature extremes in a new production by choreographer Lucy Guerin. From boiling hot to chilly and cool, Melt shows the physical side of altered temperatures.

Performer Kyle Kremerskothen, of St Kilda East, said the movements were a challenge.

"Movement is directly affected by extremes," Mr Kremerskothen said.

"There are variations of dynamics – when you're boiling you're quite fast and furious whereas when you're tepid you're quite limp and relaxed."

Melt is on at the Chunky Move Studios, Southbank, until September 29.
